Overview

In his counsel to individuals as well as private and public entities, Colin works closely with clients to provide advice on various business matters. Colin's business and commercial real estate practice covers entity formation, entity governance, restructuring, mergers and acquisitions, dissolutions, contract negotiation, commercial leasing, buy/sell arrangements, and commercial borrowing and lending.

Colin works with buyers and sellers of businesses, as well as commercial real estate, in their transactions. He meticulously reviews and drafts contracts, organizational documents, financing instruments and related material to ensure that his clients receive the best possible outcome.

Patience, charisma and a strong work ethic assist Colin as he delivers strategic advice and counsel to clients in various stages of business, commercial real estate, and financing transactions.

While at the University of Connecticut School of Law, Colin was the Student Research Project Editor of the Connecticut Insurance Law Journal.
